requests membership in the Open Source Automation Development Lab (OSADL) eG in 69120 Heidelberg, Germany, street address: Im Neuenheimer Feld 583, hereinafter called "OSADL" to take effect on .

- The applicant has received the OSADL by-laws in its current version.
- The applicant requests to acquire share(s) of 1,000 (one thousand) euros each. Members with one share, two shares or three shares are Bronze, Silver or Gold Members, respectively. Beyond that, Gold Members may acquire a total of up to ten shares, but the number of voices in the General Assembly is limited to three.
- The applicant undertakes to comply with the obligations governed by law and by-laws to render the due payment of the share or the shares. A margin call of members is explicitly excluded.
- The applicant undertakes to comply with the contractual obligation of an OSADL member to contribute (see "Obligation of an OSADL member to pay a contribution" on page 2). The applicant acknowledges that a membership is not possible without recognizing the obligation to pay a contribution. Insofar, two signatures are required for joining the OSADL (one on page 2 above and one on page 2 below).
- The applicant has received the "OSADL guide to anti-trust law" and took note of it.

The OSADL Board of Directors decides within one month after receipt of this declaration upon the admission to the membership. If the OSADL Board of Directors accepts the membership, the applicant must immediately be entered into the list of members and notified. If the OSADL Board of Directors refuses the membership, the applicant must also be notified immediately, and this declaration must be returned to the applicant.

In order to exercise its rights and obligations that arise from the OSADL membership the applicant can name a contact person to do so; if this is not taken up or only a voting proxy is executed, it is concluded that the named rights and obligations are exercised by the authorized signatory or signatories of the applicant.

Contact person:

- The named contact person is authorized to make legal declarations and to take legal action as well as to accept declarations as long as such activities belong to the immediate legal relationship between the applicant and OSADL. In addition, the named contact person is authorized to exercise voting rights at the OSADL General Assembly. He or she is not entitled to delegate his or her authorization to another person.

Obligation of an OSADL member to pay a contribution (Article 3, 3a OSADL By-laws acceptance of the contractual obligations assumed upon joining)

Every OSADL member has the contractual obligation for the period of its membership to pay in each financial year a contribution of 8,000 (eight thousand) euros per purchased share. Should a member join in during the course of a financial year, the contribution for the rest of the year, including the month of joining, shall be levied. An increase in the annual contribution shall only be permissible, if members can exercise their normal right of termination before the increase takes effect.
